Supporting children with sensory and communication needs 13 October 2016

Sensory diets and inclusion strategies

A-a inset is 'inspirational' say teaching staff & parents

Teaching staff from across Richmond and Kingston have attended inset training on sensory needs led by Action-attainment (A-a) at Waldegrave, Nelson and Barnes Primary Schools. A-a provided the same workshop at Nelson Primary to 50 parents whose children attend Twickenham schools. A-a explained how their sensory environment affects some children's learning and inclusion, but simple strategies from a programme called 'Alert' can be used to develop concentration. Feedback identified that 85% of teaching staff left with action plans to support pupils. For information on A-a's inset work for your school:

Our secondary transition workshops for parents of Y3-Y6 pupils are planned again for Autumn 2016

Feedback

A-a's sensory workshops include Tanya Van Dalen, Occupational Therapist and Tom Silver, who has studied and used the 'Alert' programme from school into university. Teachers and parents valued the speakers' first hand experience of using 'Alert.' "Mind blowing!" a parent

'On the Ball' 2017 register interest now!

Richmond families who have children aged 5-11 with sensory or communication needs can now apply for places on 'On the Ball' 2017. This is an innovative programme of parent and family learning that identifies strategies to support children's inclusion in activities at school, home and leisure - and then tries them out.

'On the Ball' starts with a parent workshop that explains the impact of sensory and communication needs on behaviour and learning. It goes on to include 10 active learning sessions held at Palewell Park, East Sheen, on Saturday mornings between April and July. Places in these 10 sessions are allocated to families where children have similar levels of ability and need. A final workshop is held at the end of the course to look at issues raised by parents who participated in the active learning sessions with their children.

On the Ball is fun. It is free of charge and in 2016 was funded by Barnes Workhouse, Richmond Parish Lands, and Richmond's Community Learning programme.

Transition Talks

A-a runs a series of parent and professional talks to aid planning for transitions - typically a difficult time for young people with communication needs. Planning for secondary school covers how parents can work with professionals to make informed decisions about a child's needs. Transition to adulthood have brought together experts in housing, employment and powers of attorney to discuss how parents can support young people's independence. Richmond Philanthropic Society supported this work in 2014 and 2015. Visit the website for more information:
