Key Knowledge

What ethics do different religions have?

Christianity: The ethics of Christianity are based on teachings in the Bible and encourage love, grace, mercy and forgiveness of sin.

Sikhism: The goal of life for a Sikh is to be at one with God. Sikhs aim to become gurmukh or close to Waheguru performing Sewa.

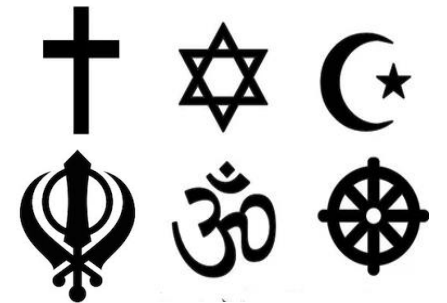

Islam: Muslims believe they have a moral responsibility to submit to God's will and follow the teachings of Muhammad set out in the Qur'an.

Judaism: The ethics of Judaism are contained in a collection of texts called the Talmud. It is important for Jews that their actions follow these rules.

Buddhism: The ethics of Buddhism are founded on the 5 precepts which include no killing, stealing or lying.

Hinduism: Dharma is the central concept for Hindu ethics. 10 virtues are required to live a Dharmic life. These include courage, forgiveness, truthfulness and wisdom.
