

Ourselfes

In science we will be learning about the different parts of our bodies.

Can you and your buzz partner list as many different body parts as you can?

Simon says...

How can you tell a male and a female peacock apart?

How can you tell a male and a female elephant seal apart?

How can you tell a male and a female dog apart?

Often in the animal world, the males are bigger than the females.

Men often are more brightly coloured or have more exciting features.

Can you label which animal is male (boy) and which is female (girl)?

mandarin ducks

lions gorillas

tigers

deer

pigs

manatees

chickens

Discuss the differences.

Often in the animal world, the males are bigger than the females.

Men often are more brightly coloured.

Some animals (like pigs and manatees) are very hard to tell apart from most angles.

Can you tell if these new born babies are male or female?

Do you think it is a boy or a girl?

How could we know for sure?

We can see their private parts.

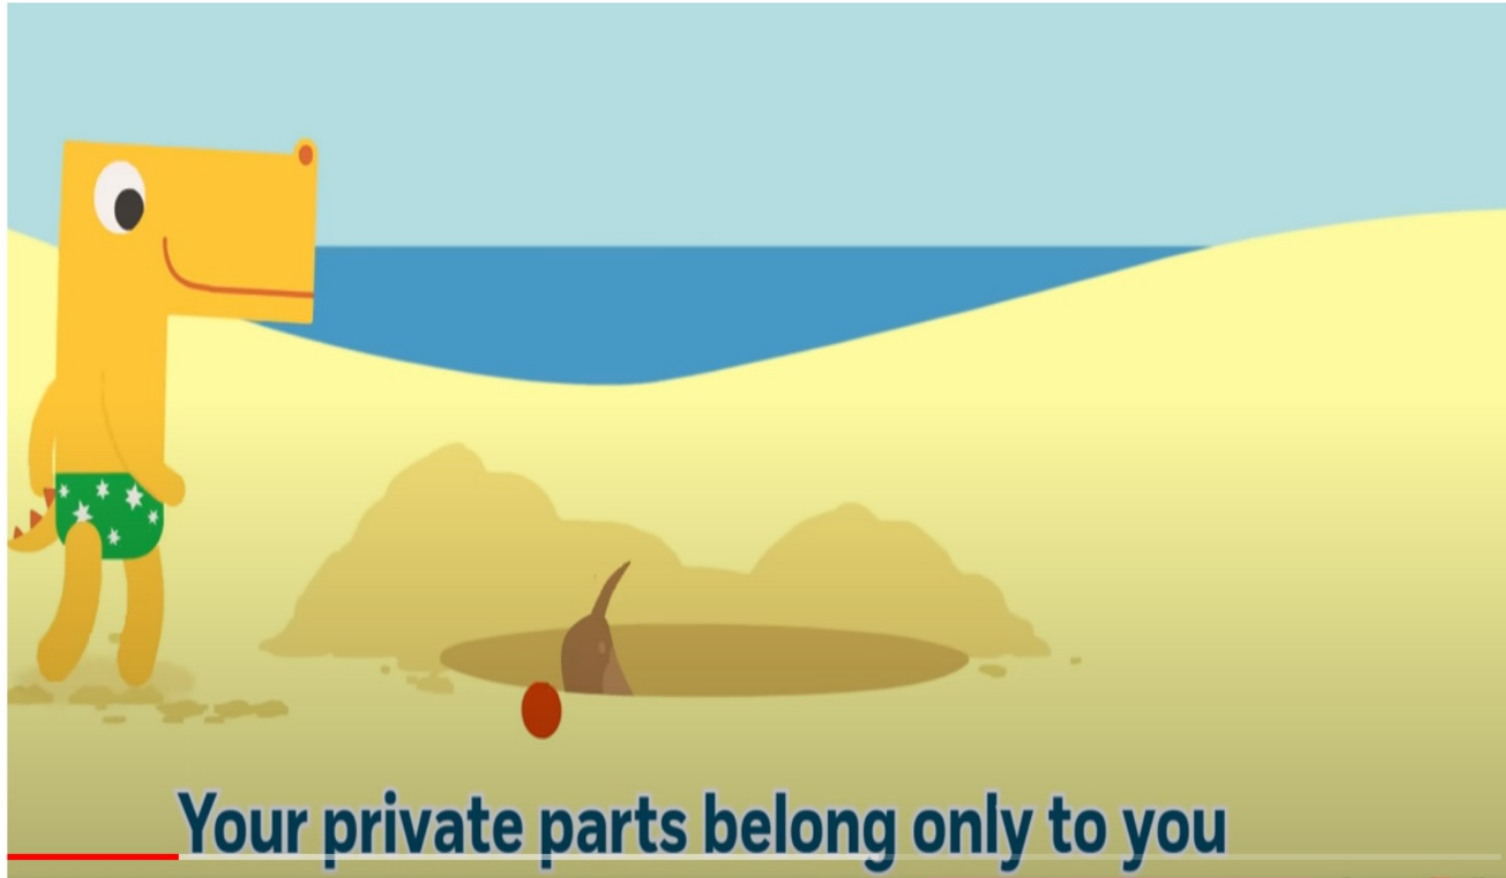

Private parts are parts of your body that we don't show in public.

They are the parts under your pants, such as your bottom.

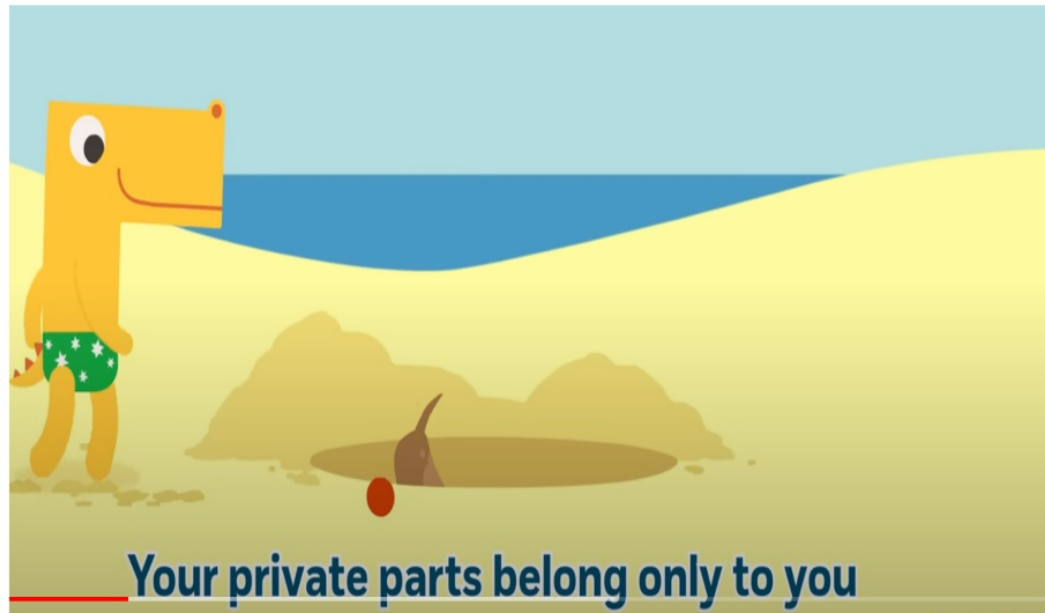

They are only for you. No-body has the right to touch or see your private parts.

NSPCC - Pantosaurus

Is there anyone other than you that it's okay sees your private parts whilst you're a child?

We already know lots of parts of our bodies.

Today we are learning the name of our private parts.

We don't very often talk about the real names for body parts. As we are not used to it, it may make us giggle a little or feel a little uncomfortable.

That is okay but we must not be silly as it might make someone more uncomfortable.

At home you might call your private parts different names and that's fine.

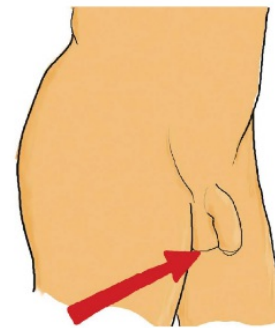

It's good to know the real name in case you might need to go to the doctor.

Well done for such sensible learning!

Reception and Year 2 haven't learnt about this today, so they might be uncomfortable if you talk about these parts in the playground.

If you want to talk about your new learning, talk to your trusted adults at home!

This is the main difference between a male and a female.
